

SURREY INDUSTRIAL HISTORY GROUP

SIHG is a group of the Surrey Archaeological Society (SyAS). It grew out of a series of lectures on industrial archaeology held at the University of Surrey in 1975 and the course described in this leaflet is the 41st lecture series.

The group also holds other meetings, arranges visits in Surrey and elsewhere, sponsors research, and undertakes recording and restoration projects. It awards a plaque annually to an outstanding conservation project in Surrey.

SIHG has produced, and continues to revise, a series of guides to industrial archaeological sites in each of the districts in Surrey. It also produces other occasional publications and a quarterly newsletter for members.

SIHG is affiliated to the national Association for Industrial Archaeology. The group was a founder member of the South East Region Industrial Archaeology Conference and participates in the annual SERIAC conference. Members receive a quarterly Newsletter with articles on industrial archaeology of local, national and international interest. There is also a diary section.
